PRIMARY COLOUR LOGO (Horizontal)

PRIMARY WHITE OUT LOGO (Horizontal)

As well as the primary colour logo you can use the logo reversed out of the black or red.

The primary version of the logo should predominantly appear on a white background.

Please use your good judgement to make the logo as legible as possible in all situations.

LOGO SHOWING EXCLUSION ZONE

MINIMUM SIZE LOGO (30MM)

The exclusion zone is in place to ensure the clarity of the logo wherever it is used. The recommended minimum exclusion zone around the logo is derived from part of the logotype.

Logo
The don’ts

DON’T TINT THE LOGO

DON’T STRETCH THE LOGO

DON’T ROTATE THE LOGO

DON’T ALTER THE COLOURS

DON’T CUT OFF PART OF THE LOGO

DON’T CHANGE THE SCALE OF ANY ELEMENT

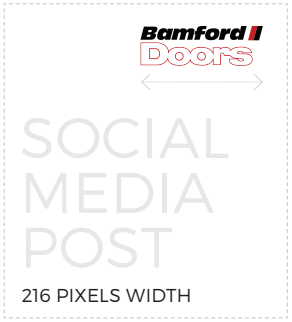

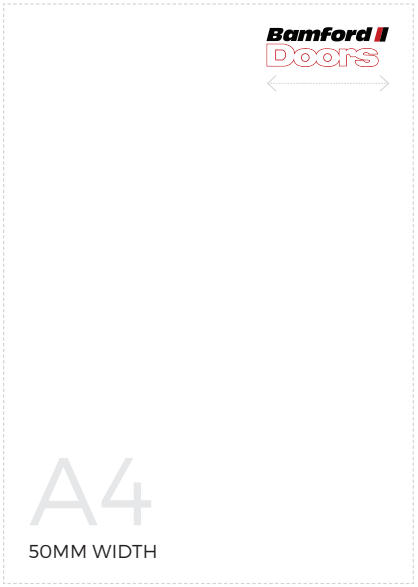

DON’T PLACE THE LOGO OVER AN IMAGE THAT WILL COMPROMISE LEGIBILITY

DO USE THE REVERSED OUT LOGO IF THE BACKGROUND IS DARK ENOUGH

Logo
Size and position

Generally, the logo should be no smaller than 20% of the width of it's media and no larger than 40%.

Although this is generally the case, there are instances where it can be bigger, e.g. vertical applications, where it can be scaled appropriately to suit.

Again, even in instances where it can be larger than 40%, it needs to be balanced from a layout and proportion point of view.

Ratio?

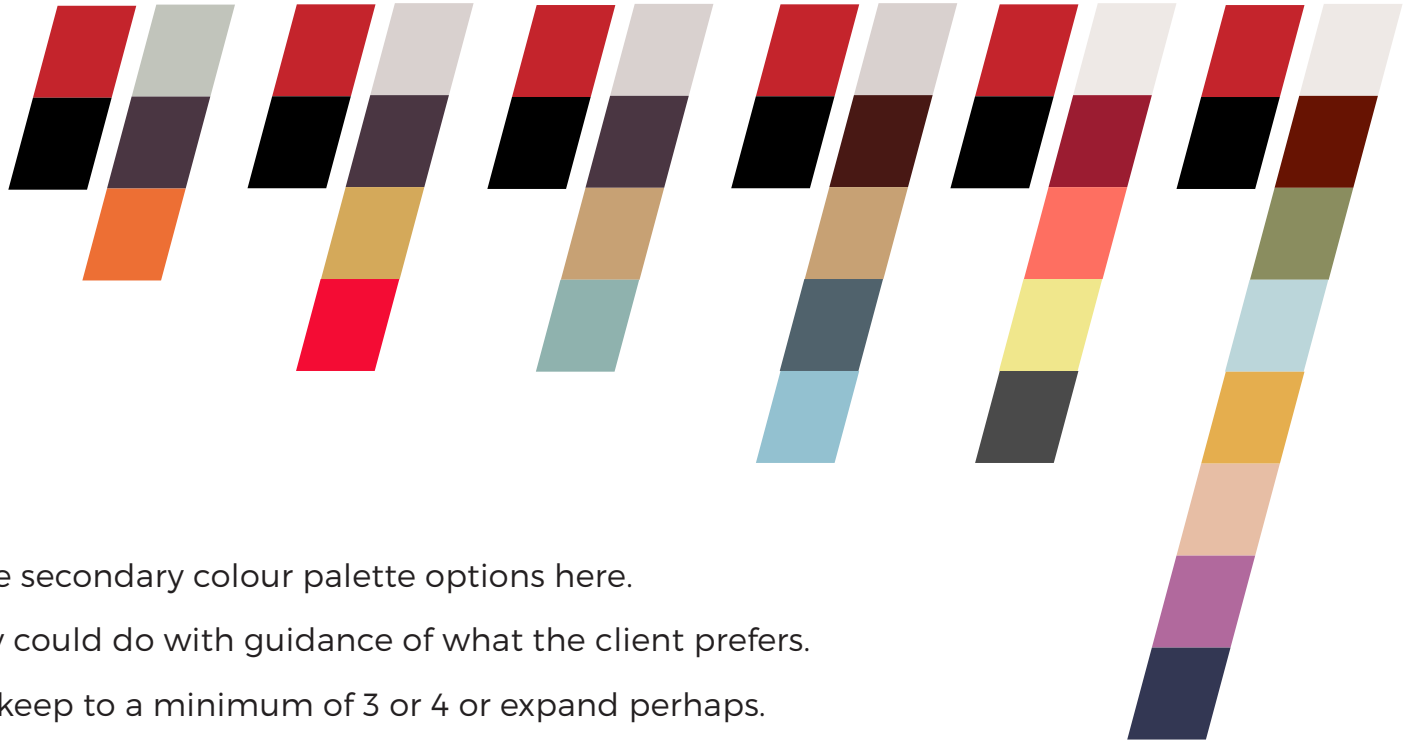

This page shows the colour values of the primary colour palette. Where appropriate tints of the colours may also be used.

The primary palette should be used as the main colour on any piece of Bamford communication.

Also a white background should be predominantly used throughout

Colours
Secondary

Some secondary colour palette options here.

Really could do with guidance of what the client prefers.

Could keep to a minimum of 3 or 4 or expand perhaps.

Gradient

The gradient of boxes is 15%

These panels can be used to build up more interest in a page layout.

They can be filled with the full primary or secondary colours.

Or a gradient of that colour can be used if more interest wants to be added or a softer approach wants to be used.

Icons

Outline icons can be introudced where an image isn't available or appropriate.

Can help to break up text or when infographics are to be used or fact pull outs.

The icons should always be 'outlined'.
